

Cell Tower Sites St. Johns County, FL

Project Description:

Matthews Design Group, Inc. (MDG) engineered site plans for eleven cell tower sites to be used for the St. Johns County Emergency Services communications network. These sites were in various sites though out the County, with each having its own distinct design applications. Project scope included an overall feasibility study to assist the County in selection of these sites with consideration for zoning, permitting restraints, power routing, and construction cost. MDG also provided assistance with bidding of the work to interested contractors, and contract administration during construction.
